IMPROVEMENT OF F. M. & P. IS CONTEMPLATED

Baltimore & Ohio Will Spend Large Sum for Better Road Bed.

RIVER CAUSING TROUBLE

Sinks Have Developed Along Blue Between Point Marion and Latimore, and Only by Large Expenditure, It Is Said, Can Difficulties Be Overcome.

Extensive improvements will be made on the Fairmont branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad within the coming year. It was indicated by General Manager F. W. Schoer on the occasion of his recent visit to Connellsville in company with Vice President C. W. Galloway and other officials.

No details were disclosed other than that within the next twelve months there will be material improvement in facilities for handling the great amount of tonnage which is passing over the Monongahela river branch, it is popularly known.

The bulk of the improvements will be made between Point Marion and Fairmont, as the branch is largely composed from one end at Point Marion to the other, in such shape that thousands of dollars must be expended in the near future.

For about parallel to the Monongahela, however, this entire distance, and since the river was improved many years ago sinks have developed at a number of places. These can be alleviated only by the expenditure of a large sum of money.

Because of these sinks there are so many slow orbits that it is impossible to make time over this part of the river by passenger or freight trains.

During the war the Latimore branch was double-tracked from Mount Driftwood to Evans, and it is believed that double-track at that point will be included in the proposed improvements. Additional sidings were laid down to meet the increased conditions no longer in existence.

At Evans the coal development south of Point Marion is on the wing, the branch is handling heavier tonnages, now than ever before. In addition to enormous tonnage of coal and coke running along the branch and on to the Smithfield & Monongahela branch, the Monongahela is called upon to handle heavy trains of the Western Maryland as a result of the traffic arrangement under which the latter railroad brings a Belmont train into Connellsville to be handled east over its own tracks.

It is expected that in addition to providing the required heavier and longer loads on the branch, other changes made will add to handling greatly increased tonnage. There is also the possibility that the newly acquired Allegheny & Northern railroad on connecting with the Monongahela through Mt. L. Virginia, will also contribute additional tonnage to the branch.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 20, 1923.

FAYETTE COUNTY'S PLACE IN INDUSTRY.

The importance of Fayette county as an industrial section of the state of Pennsylvania is shown in a striking manner by the statistics of the Department of Internal Affairs. The products manufactured at our establishents in 1921 were valued, at $77,670,000, giving the county twenty-first place among the 67 counties of the state, which means that but 20 counties turned out products of a greater aggregate value than Fayette.

On the basis of average earnings over a period of years a compilation would give Fayette a much higher place in the list because the coke trade suffered the greatest depression for 35 years during the period covered by the report from which the statistics given above are taken. In 1921 the value of the coke production was only $14,539,000, or almost $75,000,000 less than in the year preceding. In 1922 the value had increased to $15,576,000, a gain of $20,837,000 over 1921.

During the seven years, 1915 to 1922, both inclusive, the average value of coke production was $67,500,000 per year. The maximum of $127,000,000 having been reached in 1918. Had 1921 been anything like a normal year the aggregate value of Fayette county's manufactured products would have been considerably in excess of $100,000,000 instead of $72,671,000, thereby entitling the county to a place much nearer the top of the list than given it in the report.

By the same token its rating in the matter of wages paid to employees would also have been better than tenth place, which it gained in 1921 through having paid $31,279,000, or $2,088 per cent. employed in the industries. During that year the average in this regard was six per cent of the nation's equipment and averaged only 18.5 per cent for the whole state. That meant that the reductions in the number of men employed and also in the amount of the payrolls were in exact proportion.

With the report for 1922 give Fayette a very creditable showing. It does not indicate its precise industrial rating. The report for 1922 will no doubt make the showing still more representative of the county's importance as one of the leading industrial sections of the state.

THE FINE EXAMPLE OF THE SAVERS.

The reports of the banking institutions which come under the supervision of the state show that during 1922 the savings deposits increased over $100,000,000. Savings for the gain in national banks are not yet available, but it is to be presumed that these institutions made a record equal to if not greater than those under state regulation.

"And this, too," says the Harrisburg Telegraph, "in a year when many reductions were made and conditions not altogether satisfactory in many lines of employment, when demands for manufactured products lagged, when great strikes occurred and when transportation activities were reduced."

That so remarkable an increase in savings was possible under the adverse conditions prevailing during the year is in every way encouraging. Plainly the lessons of thrift are being learned by an increasing number of people who are pursuing systematic plans for laying aside a part of their earnings as they become available.

What a fine example they are giving others who do not appreciate the difference between spending foolishly and saving wisely, and who will some day regret that they, too, have not made provision, seeing that day when the saving of their thrift will help them in meeting aching joy and pleasure than the gratification of passing whimsical desires!

With all his pleasure, King Tutankhamun doesn't seem to have been able to lay any further claim to wealth with that bewitching collection of articles believed necessary to a safe journey in the great beyond. And wisely, since that day has been no more successful in taking things with them, not even a return ticket.

Being a descendant in a blood and better family will not make us more at home than at our time since his return to Fayette County Journal.

Don't Be a Camel

Harrisburg Telegraph.

Tennyson refers in one of his poems that there is in man a little of every animal under the sun. Positivists make that they can detect the tiger, the snake, the pig and other lowly creatures in their fellowmen.

Maybe this is why nobody loves a camel, although the camel is said to be the best and oldest friend of man. There is a little of the camel in us, too.

It appears that the camel is the grumbler among beasts. Those worthy and useful animals, the oldest house of burdens known to man, can do nothing cheerfully.

They just needs grumble and grunt a good deal about everything. If you burden them they complain. When you lift the burden they complain. They grumble as they lie down to rest, and grumble when they get up again. They moan at the beginning of the day and moan when the work is ended.

The camel is a fine worker, but not a willing one. His sole method of expression is to protest at everything, good or bad.

If it is necessary to point the moral, we shall say simply that there are bipeds with the soul of a camel.

These people do the day's work, and collect the goods. Yet they make themselves unmitigated miseries because they cannot come out grumbling. It isn't that they cannot work, nor will not work, but they are not able to work with good grace. Like the camel, they have been born with every happy quality sown one.

They've simply got to grumble to be happy!

MEMORY.

These are the thinks death cannot take away, the gifts of welcome which we earn to know:

Though now these cheeks where red used to glow And those lips where smiles were wont to play,

Bright realms as lovely as the skies of May.

Like a garden blanketed with snow, Until the day we, too, must turn to go.

Unchanged and constant shall her beauty stay.

Now are new tears nor pain nor cruel

Years claim her now or enter Memory's hall.

She that we loved, a beautiful and tall,

Shall seem to us still radiant, When we call.

From all life's dangers now secure in sleep,

Loved she was, and lovely she shall be.

Robbers Get $10,000 From Cincinnati Bank

By Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, Feb. 20.—William Oberholser, manager for the Pearl Market Bank, this city, was held up by three bandits today and a safe containing money and checks amounting to $10,000, mostly in checks, was taken from him.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 20.—Terrorizing the inhabitants of the little town of Easton, which lies half way between Mason City and Havana, and cutting them off from appeals for help by severing all telephone wires, a gang of bank robbers leisurely looted the Purdie State Bank at Easton last night and escaped after firing a fusillade of shots as a farewell.

This morning the little bank is a partial wreck. The bandits, the inhabitants said, fired six charges of explosives. One threw the bank safe through the brick wall and landed it in the restaurant next door. About $5,000 in cash was obtained. All telephone wires were cut and Easton was cut off not only from local communication but also from use of long distance wires.

The inhabitants did not venture from their homes. One woman, whose name faces the bank, watched them operate. Those who ventured forth went scurrying back at sight of the watchers placed about the bank.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Feb. 20.—The Columbus post office was broken into some time after midnight and $5,000 in War Savings Stamps and Internal Revenue Stamps and $ 60 in cash taken, it was learned this morning.
The robbers also made away with several thousand dollars worth of non-negotiable papers, it was said.

the week. Music is being provided each evening and there will be something all the time besides the exhibitions to entertain those who come.

Keynotes
To Fashionable Costumes*Spring Dresses Achieve Distinction

THE artistry of the designers is clearly apparent in the intriguing frocks of spring. Everywhere there is evidenced the newer trend of fashion.

Big collars that lie in expansive simplicity over silken clad shoulders, tiny puffed sleeves, quaintly reminiscent of grandmother's days, basque like blouses that top billowing skirts of rustling taffetas. These are but a few of the newer things in vogue.

$35.00 $39.50

These are some of the popular prices that will bring these smart fashions to your very door. Timely appealing gowns for every woman's need in colorful array and style-filled appeal.

The one on the left has decided to have no sleeve at all and smocks a little half-around capes upon its predominant in flavor. The other frock, which is a spritz taffeta, behaving half-sleeves is also smocked none at all, and fills in the other half of its sleeve with Val ruffles and roses. Over each hip, lace and roses appear to give a slightly bouffant silhouette.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough and cold mixture prepared.

If you consider the analgesic properties of every known "cough and cold mixture," you probably could not get a much real curative power as there is in this simple, inexpensive, cough remedy which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any drugstore 2 cups of Pineo and Stevia, add a cupful of water, fill the bottle with Syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, charcoal or abalone honey. Add a few drops of mint extract. A full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and non-spicy.

This Pineo and Stevia syrup is right at the expense of a cough and gives a more invigorating relief than any other syrup. Stop the nasal throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes and the throat easily that is not really effective.

A day's use will quickly overcome the regular cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, laryngitis, asthma, etc., it is nothing better.

Pineo is a most valuable, concentrated antiseptic. No ordinary syrup contains and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid overstimulation, etc., pour directly on the mouth of Pineo with full directions, and don't accent anything else. Concentrated to over absolute dilution, a mouthful requires 1/4 cupful.

The Custard Cup

Presently she went on her voice lower, her breathing uneven sounding more to herself than to another, so far was she withdrawn from the present. "We were happy—happy until—There was an epidemic! The worse of it had passed. We had escaped; we thought we were safe! The relief from anxiety made us more thankful, happier than ever. One night we had a jolly supper, five of us at that round table. There was green peas and sugar plum. Little David loved to see it tremble.

His cards were like cards of sunshine, and his eyes were the deepest blue. And Katherine and Bobby—They were all so well, too, full of laughter. But—that very night—first one and then another—in the morning they were gone. Thing of it in fore day broke they were—all my babies—gone!" Her eyes lit up, then dimmed again. Was it then that little David had come to him? It ached so to see his heart aches, and you got more love for more folks—of less. When I had children, I had my own. I thought about them, but when I lost them I began to think about all the children, even those—so fully those that was born, dappled and forlorn and didn't have a chin to grow up to the souls that the Lord gave em. I came to see that I'd got to make a home for him if on so I gave up my position and hunted up work, and then I had to much money this way and had to go to live, but I feel richer.

"Oh, my dear," said Mrs. Sanders softly, "how did you ever stand it?" Said it? Mrs. Pendleton took up the card with hesitating vehemence. "I didn't stand it. I was having such a trying life over here back to her neighbor's face Mrs. Pendleton said. Mrs. Pendleton's face had lit up to Mrs. Pendleton's heavy hair, nearly white, scarcely out of keeping with the look of youth that tinged her features and expression.

Mrs. Pendleton caught the glance. "It turned that night, she said indifferently. It didn't matter."

"And yours—you?"

Mrs. Pendleton's lips worked. "It'll do my husband, she replied. "Not at once—but he never got over it. He was devoted to his family. He hadn't been well since ran down fast. We sold—tried—nothing. It didn't last six months."

"Oh, dear, dear!" Mrs. Sanders said pitifully. "That was when—"

"Mrs. Pendleton nodded. "It would have been easy—to say no too. The hard thing was to stay—in an empty world. Nothing—"

"I know how you feel, long—ever heard."

Carefully Mr. Pendleton took "the word to shreds and cast it aside." Part of me died—when he did. I hate never been the same. I try—but I can't."

Her voice broke. She wheeled quickly and went over to the window, clutching with her back to the room. "I crawled into the bushes in the mud and water, the cold with the outlet of lone suppressed torture pounded into the silence of the room with unceasing contrast of physical violence upon some sacred silence."

Mrs. Pendleton scarcely breathed, gazing into Mrs. Sanders' eyes by the depth of the anguish which she had unwillingly admitted. Her own grief was swallowed up in the grief of another.

At last Mrs. Pendleton turned and came back. She walked firmly. Her eyes were brimming with tears but there was a smile on her lips.

"Sorry I went to pieces so she apologized. I try to keep my will power pressed down on my feelings but if I take it off the least bit they pull up my clothes as ever. You mustn't think I'm complaining. I did it a spell but I learned better."

"It's awful," agreed Mrs. Sanders.

I want to tell you how I hate myself for being an idiot. I wouldn't have, but you're the reason. But I never dreamt I was always an idiot."

"I'm cheerful," acknowledged Mrs. Pendleton softly, "but once I was happy. I tell you what Mrs. Sanders you can be suspicious of the folks that are cheerful. Real born through searching. Happiness is a thing that bubbles up naturally before you've had much experience, but cheerfulness is a thing you've been born out and stand by 'cause you believe I'm right. There's a kind of happiness that never comes back once I

Lighted in methods of self-flagellation that should translate the frenzy of wrong doing into a frenzy of torments.

Opposed to all rules was Mrs. Pendleton's attitude of hostility as of a detached onlooker. "You're too young still," Mrs. Woppin. "You'll be sorry when it's too late," declared Mrs. Pendleton. But Mrs. Pendleton's eyes was largely centered on getting rid of the intestinal disease of all descriptions. And she certainly enjoyed it. By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
With a large front porch, the exterior is a most striking arrangement. The front porch may be screened and will provide an excellent place to read and sleep during the summer. It is plenty large being 21 feet 6 inches by 8 feet. There is a platform on the second floor just over the kitchen not shown in the picture that could also be converted into a sleeping porch. It is 12 feet 6 inches large enough to permit two beds being put in comfortable.

The interior arrangement has been worked out carefully making every part of the house comfortable.

The attractive house shown in this accompanying photograph is a typical two-story American home of the type found in every section of the country. It is an extremely practical place for the average family, for here is plenty of room and the house arrangement is excellent.

It is a standard durable concern, the type of house designed along plain and simple lines yet with just enough touch of the bungalow style to give it a very pleasing and distinctive appearance. It has been constructed along accepted lines and is economical to build.

It does not cost any more money to build a house which will be good to look at than it does to build an ugly one, nor does it cost a lot more to have front porch cost a lot more in real expenditure of cash than in attractive. The total expenditure on this is $1000 less one of thought and care, - what the lasting beauty of the house means to you.

It is built to wear and stand up for many years of use. The materials are higher grade stones than ever on permanence and lasting qualities. Stained of metal latches and nailed over the common latches before covering with planter are found to be inexpensive but quite effective in preventing corner planter cracks which are so disfiguring.

The architect in designing this home incorporated attractive features that create a very pleasing impression and would make the home stand out distinctively in any city.

More Bertha Collars!

$1.35 to $4

BERTHA, the mother of Charlemagne the Great, wore the first Bertha collar. Today it is an equally impressive fashion. Real lace Berthas are the order of the times for wear on afternoon or dinner frocks. They are exceedingly charming against any background. These lace Bertha collars just now are developed in exceptionally charming lace. They show new types of lattice work, quaint little floral motifs and other touches that will delight any woman who wants her collar to have distinction. They're reasonably priced $1.35 to $1.00.

New Printed Silks
favor bizarre Egyptian designs

$5.00—$6.00 Yd.

NEW printed silks for Spring have taken their inspiration from the gorgeous things that have been recently discovered in Tutankhamen's tomb.

They cover themselves with quaint hieroglyphic figures and exploit the warm deep colors of the country of the Nile.

This news we gather from a shipment of silks that has but recently arrived from New York.

The patterns and colors are so unusual and delightful that they immediately suggest a number of new uses, not only in fashioning hats, blouses, piping, trimmings, etc., but in making neckcloths, blouse and many other things, new to spring.

They are all bejeweled in luxuriant Puss Willow silk whose soft, fine weave and unique quality has made it a favorite with designers. They are priced $5 and $6 per yard.
